DEVELOPING MENTORING NETWORKS

OCTOBER 2nd 2025 3PM - 4:30PM
online & in your local hub

Speaker

Prof.
Wendy
Murphy

Professor of Management
Babson College, Wellesley,
Massachusetts, USA

Mentoring networks are highly valuable for personal and professional development, offering connections, guidance, and opportunities across a wide range of contexts. In this workshop, we are joined by Wendy Murphy, who will give you an introduction on how to develop, grow and sustain meaningful mentoring networks. You will learn practical strategies to strengthen professional relationships that support both, mentors and mentees.

Wendy Murphy is a Professor of Management at Babson College, MA, specializing in leadership, organizational behaviour, and mentoring. Her research focuses on mentoring, career development and gender, emphasizing the role of developmental networks and work-life relationships in professional success. She is involved in educational initiatives and has co-authored a book on mentoring and workplace relationships. Additionally, she is active in the broader academic community and has been recognized for her teaching excellence.
